Tabor near a bridge to end near Wm. Petrey's barn and also to lay out a public road from the above proposed road to a point at the junction of the Aspers mill road.

Children Played with Rifle.

Jacob Miller of New Baltimore, moved to Hamilton township, midway between Abbotstown and East Berlin, two weeks ago. Last Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Miller went to New Baltimore to remove some goods which had been left behind, leaving several children at home. One of the boys, during the absence of the parents, procured a rifle and in playing with the weapon accidentally shot one of the little ones in the right foot, the bullet passing through that member. A physician was summoned who rendered the necessary treatment and the child at this time is doing well.

Clothing on Fire.

Wilber Freed, living at Brookline, Mass., had a narrow escape from burning last week. He was a former resident of East Berlin, was the adopted son of Ex-Sheriff N. M. Stoner and wife, and lived with his foster parents in Gettysburg a number of years. He had gone to his room and struck a match, the head flying off and igniting his clothing. By the time he had the door unlocked and called for help his clothing was ablaze. When help came and the flames had been extinguished, his hands and other parts of his body were severely burned. At one time it was thought that some of his fingers would have to be amputated, but this was avoided.

Confessed to Burglary.

John Henson of Littlestown is in jail in York charged with the burglary of store of Howard Malaun of Hanover, on last Thursday night. The till was rifled of 50 cents, a lot of oysters were taken, a new pocket-book from the show case and also a lot of fruit. An unsuccessful attempt was made to break open the penny slot machine. Entrance was gained by breaking one of the large windows in the front door.

When William Shafer, clerk at Malaun's opened for business Friday morning he discovered that burglary had been committed, and his suspicion at once pointed toward John Henson, of near Littlestown, as the perpetrator of the deed, from the fact that Henson was present Thursday night when he (Shafer) closed up for the night. Before closing Mr. Shafer opened a penny slot machine and removed 25 pennies, which he placed in the till with some other small change, which Henson noticed.

Henson was found in Hanover and being taken to police headquarters was searched, the pocket-book and money being found upon him. He denied his guilt until searched when he admitted his guilt. He was committed to the York jail by Squire Sell on charge of burglary and larceny to await action of next Grand Jury of that county.

THE LINCOLN WAY.

Bill Re-introduced into Congress by Hon. D. F. Lafean.

The Lincoln way is bound to come notwithstanding the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Lincoln has been celebrated. The nation has provided no great memorial to Lincoln. The Lincoln way is recognized as the one memorial pre-eminently fitting. Hon. James T. McCarly when in Gettysburg on the Lincoln centennial declared his way is the way and believed that eventually it would be built as a memorial to Lincoln.

Congressman Lafean re-introduced last week in Congress the bill providing for the survey of land between Washington and Gettysburg battlefield for a boulevard 150 feet wide. If this bill is not considered at the extra session it ought to get so placed as to be sure of being finally considered at the long session next winter.

Gettysburg brains ought to be at work to devise anything and everything to help along the Lincoln way and then go to work to carry into effect all devised plans.

Automobile Run.

An automobile run by the Harrisburg Motor Car Club is scheduled to go thorough Gettysburg on May 3. There will be 35 cars and the outward run will be through Gettysburg, and by way of Frederick to Washington. The return run will be via Baltimore, Westminster, Hanover, York and Lancaster to Harrisburg.

Littlestown Hotel Changes Hands.

Charles W. Huff, proprietor of the Hotel Huff in Littlestown for the last eight years, last week sold the good will and fixtures to Geo. W. Brumgard who will take immediate possession. Mr. Huff and family will move to Brumgard residence taken in by Mr. Huff as part of the consideration of the purchase. Willis Bish has purchased the Brumgard grocery store and produce route, teams, etc., and will continue the same.

Dynamite Explosion.

Van W. Arendt of Butler township, had a thrilling experience thawing out dynamite on farm of John Kime in Strasburg township last week. He was blowing out stumps and found the dynamite frozen and placed seven pounds of it in a bag with some hot bricks. He left it for a few minutes and returning picked up the bag which burst into flames and shaking the bag to put out the fire the dynamite fell out of the bag on some dynamite caps and exploded. Things were scattered and in some marvelous way Mr. Arendt escaped without a scratch.

Danger to Life.

The speed limit of automobiles will be increased to 24 miles an hour on suburban and country roads and 15 miles in towns with consequent increase in danger to life and also in damages to roads which you must pay unless you use your personal influence at once upon your representative to oppose Senate Bill No. 85 now in the House.

A Word to the Wise.

Settlement day, April 1st, is rapidly approaching. Have you thought of an investment for your surplus funds? This is a question that demands careful consideration: one must consider the safety of the investment, together with the returns and its convertibility in time of need. The PEOPLES' BANK OF HANOVER offers 3 1/2 per cent. interest on time deposits, if left six months or more, and combines in its offer the three above essentials, so necessary to an attractive investment; namely, ABSOLUTE SECURITY, A GOOD YIELD, AND CASH ANY TIME YOU DESIRE. Business of every description invited; careful service, liberal and courteous treatment.

Capital $50,000.00.

Surplus $50,000.00.

NEW UNDERTAKING OF D. A. R.

HAVE RENTED ROOM IN FIRST NATIONAL BANK BUILDING.

Will Create an Historical Museum—Gifts and Loans of Old Things Asked.

The Gettysburg Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution have rented a room in the First National Bank Building on the Square for the purposes of the chapter and to be used in gathering together of an historical museum.

It is to be regretted that the D. A. R. decided to give up the project of the purchase of the old Dobbin home and the conversion of that ancient landmark to their purposes and for an historical museum, but sufficient encouragement was not received and it was concluded to abandon the idea.

In selecting a room in the First National Bank Building the D. A. R. were guided by a number of reasons, among others that the location was central and to every one interested in the proposed museum would be easy of access. The building is fire proof and any historical collection will be perfectly safe there, which is a most desirable condition.

The D. A. R. propose to receive either as gifts or loan all kinds of revolutionary and historical articles, telling of this community and its people and events which transpired here. Such articles as needs to be kept in cases for their preservation will be so cared for. It will be their effort to arrange and display the collection so as to be easily studied. It is the purpose that this museum as soon as collected and arranged will be thrown open to the public on frequent occasions, making it possible for everyone specially the young people and school children to study the collection.

This historical museum should have the earnest support of all of our people who own old things telling the history of times that have passed away. There are many families who have these old things and do not know what to do with them. They have been relegated to the garret long ago and yearly comes the temptation to consign them to the rubbish pile or the fire. Here is the opportunity to donate them so that they will serve a useful purpose and be preserved. If the owner should happen to be attached to the old things then they could be loaned, serve the useful purpose and be returnable upon demand. It is the intention of the D. A. R. if for any reason the museum can not be made a permanent affair to return all articles given or loaned them.

The old things should be preserved by every community. They strikingly illustrate and tell of the life of ancestry. One might seek to follow the advice of the old philosopher, "know thyself," yet in the acquiring of this knowledge the ancestry were overlooked the greater part of each soul would be unknown to himself or herself. The race not only inherits mental and physical qualities but gathers much out of the environment of the ancestry. The old things speak of the life of your ancestry and the environment and adds greatly to self-knowledge.

The old things teach. A generation ago men and women were busy from the rising of the sun to the setting thereof with many absolutely necessary cares. This was the condition of the environment of the race for centuries. In the space of a generation invention has lifted the race from this environment. The harvest of this change will be entirely lost if the race stands still or must take time to rest or loaf. Any such condition is a backward movement. The abundance of time given formerly to needs is now to be had for things more worth while so that the human may go forward to a larger destiny. The old things ask of every one what are you giving to the world out of the savings of time and labor your ancestry could not give?

The old things are inseparably linked with the history of the times in which they were useful articles and the story of those times can not be properly studied without information and knowledge of these old things.

The old things make for historical accuracy in many ways. There are many words in our language word-children and grown up use because literature has made them the common property of all, yet they are of indefinite and inaccurate meaning to the present age because touching of the things of another age. The preservation of the old things will preserve to the human a better knowledge and understanding of his mother tongue and its literature.

These are a few of the many reasons why the old things of another age should be preserved and made accessible to the community in an historical museum.

Any one with any article of historical importance should see or communicate with Mrs. W. H. O'Neal, Regent of the Gettysburg Chapter of the D. A. R., Mrs. Donald P. McPherson, Vice Regent, Miss Margaret Barr, Registrar, or with Mrs. J. L. Butt, Treasurer, and let them know what they have to give or loan toward this laudable purpose.

Fine Band Concert.

The Citizens' Band of Gettysburg gave a fine concert on last Wednesday evening. It was the first concert given since Prof. Harold S. Lewars became the conductor, and the band gave the best concert it has yet given, marked improvement being noticed in time and interpretation. The full program was as follows:

Coronation March (The Prophet), Myerbeer; A Hunt in the Ardennes, Marie; A Night in Berlin, Hartman; The Exalted Ruler, Hall; Sir Nigel, Veunor; Edinburg, Bonnisseau; Tannhauser March, Wagner.

The Band proposes to hold a Fair and Festival during the first week in May, likely the four nights of May 5, 6, 7, and 8. The band desires not only to square up all indebtedness but to get ahead and if the band is to progress there must be a number of new instruments in the near future.

I. L. Taylor, President of the Band, during the intermission in the concert, explained to the audience how the band members had been going twice a week, that all of them were so employed, and many of them married and that is was not always the easiest thing to attend practice and concerts for the love of it. That since the organization of the Citizens' Band no member had received the slightest recompense. That as the Band was contributing of their time and energy the Board believed it was up to the town to support their concerts and any fairs and festivals. That it was the intention to hold a fair and festival at an early date, likely other concerts and as soon as the season opened free outdoor concerts. That the helping hand of the public was asked to meet the helping hands of the members of the Band to make the organization a success and feature of this community.

Keep this in mind when you are asked to help the Fair and Festival.

Rev. W. W. Hartman to Leave.

Although the appointments of the Methodist Conference in Harrisburg have not been made known at the time of our going to press our latest information is that Rev. W. Hartman is to be taken from the Methodist Church of this place and that Rev. Lorenzo D. Ott, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church of Danville, will be the new pastor here. Rev. Hartman's new home will in all probability be Hollidaysburg, Blair county. Rev. Hartman has served the congregation here for five years and during that time has made many friends both in and out of the church. He has been a faithful pastor, the church growing under his pastorate, and in addition to his church work he served for three years as President of the Adams County Sabbath School Association and Chairman of the Inter-Party Local Option League. Mrs. Hartman has also been an active worker in all branches of church work. The many friends of Rev. and Mrs. Hartman will be sorry to see them leave. We wish them success in their new field.

Don't Carry Explosives on Trains

As an illustration that many of the users of explosives are not conversant with the requirements of the law in the handling of explosives, a case was recently discovered where a valise was checked from Pittsburg, Pa., to Gary, W. Va. During transit valise came open and disclosed the presence of an assortment of dangerous explosives. It was delivered to the railway company as baggage by two foreigners who have been arrested and are now in prison awaiting trial before the United States Court for violation of the Act of Congress approved May 30, 1908. This Act prohibits the transportation of explosives in vehicles used for transportation of passengers, or in freight cars unless full information is given to the common carrier in regard to the contents of the package and unless the package is prepared for shipment strictly in accordance with the regulations prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The penalty provided for violations of this statute is a fine not to exceed two thousand dollars, or imprisonment not to exceed 18 months, or such both fine or imprisonment in the discretion of the Court.

Charged with Forgery.

Charles H. Orner of Danville was arrested last week in Harrisburg by County Detective Charles H. Wilson and brought to Gettysburg, and is now in jail on a charge of forgery. He is charged with having forged the name of his father, Andrew Orner, to two notes held by the Gettysburg National Bank, one for $90 and the other for $140.

Rev. Mr. Geesey, a student in the Theological Seminary, has been elected pastor of the Upper Strasburg Lutheran charge, Franklin county. He will be graduated in June and will take up his pastoral work at that time. The charge has been without a pastor for some time.

TOWN COUNCIL IN SESSION

FIXES THE TAX RATE IN BOROUGHS FOR THE YEAR 1909.

An Increase of One-fourth of a Mill to Provide Interest for the New Debt.

The Town Council held an adjourned special meeting on Tuesday evening of last week.

The question of the tax rate was considered at length. The councilmen were anxious not to increase the tax rate of five mills general borough tax and two and a half mills special tax.

Councilman Butt, chairman of the Finance Committee read the report of that committee on the probable expenses of the borough for the next 12 months. In the opinion of the committee the general borough tax of five mills was considered sufficient for the general expenses, but the new issue of bonds of $10,000 would require a small increase of the special tax rate to meet the interest on the debt. Council finally fixed the borough tax rate for 1909 at five mills general tax and two and three-quarter mills special tax.

Burgess Holtzworth recommended a registration clock for the police and it was decided to buy one registration clock with nine stations for the night policeman and if the system was found satisfactory a second equipment will likely be bought later, so that both policemen can be put on their own system.

Borough Attorney R. E. Wible reported letters he had written to the two railroad companies asking that nuisances maintained be removed.

The extension of sewer on East Middle and Hanover streets was discussed but no action taken.

The improvement of the streets was considered at some length. The general sentiment was that limestone was not the best stone for the street, that it was too soon ground to dust and became mud. The stone that can be procured in and around Gettysburg is believed to be better material for street purposes and will last longer before being ground into dust and mud. Councilman Beck was of the opinion that the owner of a traction engine near town might be able to rent one of the stone crushers in the county and take a contract to crush stone for the town. It was decided to advertise for bids for crushing 1000 tons of stone.

Charles Strasbaugh presented bill for $20 for repairs occasioned by the clogging and overflow of the sewer near Washington House. Consent had been given to go through his property provided all damages sewer might cause would be paid. Bill was referred to the Sewer Committee.

The next meeting of the council will be the regular meeting on April 6th.

Spring Sales.

The spring sales have come to an end, and they have proved to be exceptional successful affairs. Horses and cattle brought the high dollar, exceeding prices at previous sales. Take the sale of H. A. Hershey as an illustration, the best sold horse brought $300, a ten months colt $110, a cow $55 and 2 sows and pigs $49 a piece. The total of this sale was $3592.30, what was true of this sale was true of every sale we have heard of. If anything went under price the sums received for the stock more than made up for the difference. This condition was somewhat unexpected, as there was a fear at the opening of the season that the hoof and mouth disease might scare purchasers and depreciate stock. There are many reasons for the good prices. The continued high prices of wheat, corn and oats has made the stock more valuable.

Our new line of Ladies' Kid Gloves are better than ever. Guaranteed. Prices $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50. Dougherty & Hartley.

Civic Club.

The regular monthly meeting of the Civic Club will be held in the Engine House at 2:30 p. m., Friday April 2. This is also the annual meeting at which the officers for the coming year will be elected. A full attendance is earnestly requested. By order of the President.

Legislative Visitors.

Gettysburg was visited last Thursday by a large delegation of State Senators and members of the House of Representatives. The visit made at the invitation and suggestion of Senator Wm. A. Martin and urgings of Senator Edward M. Herbst of Berks Co., and a great friend of Gettysburg. In the party were such Democratic leaders as Dimeling, Hall, Herbst, Grimm and others. They were asked whether their visit had any special significance and the reply was "None at all, that many of them had never seen the battlefield and had followed the lead of Senators Martin and Herbst to see the field." Capt. J. T. Long was the guide of the party over the battlefield. They took dinner at the Eagle Hotel. The following were in the party: Senators Charles H. Kline, Pittsburg; James Campbell, Mercer; Edward F. Blewitt, Scranton; B. F. Miller, Bangor; Edward F. James, Hazleton; David Wilbert, Pittsburg; Oscar E. Thompson, Phoenixville; Charles A. Instructions to Registrars.

Registrars for the State Health Department have received from Dr. Samuel Dixon, head of the State Board, new instructions to secure as accurate as possible a report of births in their districts.

Where deaths of children occur within two years of their birth the registrar is to look up the birth records, and if there is no report of the birth, the family physician or mid-wife are to be communicated with. If they neglected to report the birth they will be prosecuted by the State.

Where no physician or mid-wife were in attendance the parents are held responsible for the report of the birth to the proper authorities, and failing to do so are subject to the same fine as doctors and mid-wives.

The registrar is advised to co-operate with the ministers and priests in securing accurate birth returns. As baptism is a rite observed by most denominations, it is easy for the officiating clergyman to advise the family to see that proper record of the birth is made.

Instructions covering these points are printed in several different languages for the benefit of mid-wives, and will be distributed to the latter during the week by the registrar.

EDITORIAL SPEAKING—LEGISLATION.

The prospects are not encouraging that the present Legislature of Pennsylvania will inaugurate any great public enterprise or remedial or reform legislation but a lot of doubtful legislation and the usual general appropriations. The available revenue of the state is about $44,000,000. The general appropriation bill cuts about $27,000,000, leaving $17,000,000 to be spent. The public school system will get $15,000,000 of this, so that there is about $2,000,000 left and there are new bills before the Legislature carrying appropriations of forty millions. The Legislature or the Governor will be up against the question of making appropriations meet size of income. Hence the chances of a two million capitol park, or three million soldiers pension or a five million highway look far in the distance. It is said that the Republican machine, Penrose, Durham, McNeel, have decided against the park and soldiers pension, that they may allow the State Highway to go through with a small amount to begin work with. The same machine has its attorney at work to trim the school code which it took Drs. Schaffer and Brumbaugh, school experts, months to prepare and if the framers of the code are unwilling to accept amendments of the machine, the code will get it in the neck. It is possible the people will be asked whether they want a constitutional amendment so that twenty-five million dollars may be borrowed to be spent on public roads, and that will shelve the good road subject for about three years. Helpful legislation can not be expected of a Legislature under the domination of the machine.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

The spring primary is but two months ahead, the first Saturday of June. The time is here for candidates to announce to the voters. There will be nominated at the primary two candidates for Associate Judge, one Director of the Poor and one Jury Commissioner. The people have the right to know who are the candidates and hence it is the duty of every candidate to announce himself as early as possible so that the voter may have full opportunity to make his acquaintance personally and by repute. Announcements are now in order.

Latean's Position on Tariff.

Congressman D. F. Lafean was asked last week for his position on the tariff bill being considered by the special session of Congress and replied, "Naturally, York city, because of its numerous and diversified manufacturing industries, will be affected one way or the other by the provisions of this measure. However, the bill, as introduced, is but a tentative proposition and will no doubt before its final passage undergo many changes through amendments in both the house and senate.

"The ways and means committee in preparing the bill which was introduced by Mr. Payne framed the bill in such manner as to insure sufficient revenue to run the government. Most naturally there are some provisions in the bill which will affect some particular localities, but, as a whole, the measure will be beneficial to the country at large.

"When the various items in the bill are brought up for consideration, I shall cast my vote in such manner as will, in my judgment, insure to the greatest benefit to my constituents."

RUNAWAY AND LUCKY ESCAPE.

BARLOW, March 22.—On last Wednesday as Mrs. Clarence Snyder, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Marling of Cumberland township was on her way to visit her parents, the horse she was driving took fright at something near the residence of Mr. Robert Durnbow and became unmanageable. It finally turned in the road, when Mrs. Snyder with great presence of mind jumped from the buggy, thereby escaping any serious injury. The horse then followed the road to Centennial Hall school house, where it ran into the woods, where it tore loose from the buggy and then ran into a wire fence of D. W. Horner and got fast, and was then caught and rescued by Robert Durnbow. The buggy and harness were badly wrecked, the horse escaped any serious injury.

Mrs. C. L. F. Fisher returned to her home in Lynchburg, Va. last Tuesday morning, after a short visit to her mother, Mrs. N. M. Horner of this place.

The Sunday School at Mountjoy church will be organized on Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock, March 25. Everybody come and take part in the organization.

THE FUTURE OF GETTYSBURG

WHEN MANY STATES WILL HAVE MEMORIAL BUILDINGS

A Native Sees Such A Future and Presents Suggestions and Plans as to Preservation of Sites

A native of the county, always interested in its welfare, has written us of the future of Gettysburg as he sees it, when many states will be represented here by memorial buildings and makes valuable suggestions. Saying:

In my opinion, the good people of Gettysburg would make a mistake in their desire to crowd all public buildings within the present limits of the borough. The battlefield extends for miles around. All of Adams County is Gettysburg, in the estimation of people who reside at a distance.

Several hundred acres have been ceded to the United States, and will be retained forever by the National Battlefield Association. Excellent highways have been built across this land, and hundreds of monuments have been erected by the several states, and many military organizations, in honor of the heroes whose lives were here offered a sacrifice to their country.

When the National Government shall have selected all the land it will need for its patriotic purposes, the plans of the borough must be altered, so that the town will encircle all the lands of the National Battlefield Association. In the course of time memorial buildings will, with the consent of Pennsylvania, be erected by other states and organizations, upon selected sites in various directions from the National Cemetery, around the outer edge of this reservation.

Like the District of Columbia, Gettysburg belongs to the whole Nation. Fifty years ago, the action of our government officials in locating public buildings far apart in Washington, was considered ridiculous, and the National Capital was called the "City of Magnificent Distances." Since then the intervening space has been filling up fast enough. The foresight of those who laid the plans is admired and commended, and Washington is regarded as the best planned city in the world.

There are hundreds of beautiful sites within a mile or so of the Centre Square in Gettysburg, quite suitable for a State Memorial Building.

Would it be considered a timely suggestion that a local committee, composed of citizens of Adams Co., obtain options on a few of these sites, plots of from ten to twenty acres, and purchase and present to a State the one which the committee will prefer for a Memorial Building? A plot of ten acres will be quite small enough, twenty acres will not be too large for the purpose, for other suitable and necessary buildings for the comfort and convenience of visitors will be needed, and the land may be kept as an ornamental park.

I have not visited Gettysburg in some years, but have in mind a beautiful ridge on the road toward Hanover, which would be a good location for a Memorial Building. But this may be too remote for the present generation. Other suitable sites abound, including several to the right and left of Hanover road, on the Gettysburg side of the slope to Rock Creek. Down the Baltimore Pike toward the approaching Lincoln Way, there is a magnificent site on the hill-top, where before the battle, stood the observatory.

Educational Meeting.

The seventh and last educational meeting of the teachers of Mt. Joy township was held March 12th, 1909, at Fair View school, Ruby Walker, teacher. Only three teachers were present, Messrs. John Appier and Charles Little and Miss Ruby Walker. The meeting was called to order by the president followed by song "My Life Flows On." Reading of minutes by the Secretary: Recitations by Ruth Hartlaub, Samuel Straley, Paul Hartlaub and Helen Snyder. 1st topic: "Spelling," was discussed by Messrs. Chas. Little and John Appier: Recitation by Margaret Breighner: Exercise "A Useful Bouquet." Song "A Song of Long Ago." Recitations by Myrtle Arata, Catharine Breighner, Dennis Straley and Ada Cover. 2nd topic: "How to keep our school attentive," was discussed by Messrs. Chas. Little and John Appier and Ruby Walker. Song, "Nature's Song to the Birds." Recitations by Esther Myers, Dennis Hartlaub and Bessie Hartlaub. A collection was then taken up. Recitations by Nettie Collins, Alda Straley and Beatrice Noel. Song "Child Life on the Farm." 3rd topic: "How can we better our schools?" discussed by Messrs. John Appier and Chas. Little: Recitation by Loy Myers: Song "In Honor of Washington." Meeting then adjourned.

The Agricultural Train

The Agricultural Train visited Littlestown last Wednesday as well as a number of other points. The train was made up of three coaches, two of which were used for the lectures and the other for the equipment. When the train stopped at Littlestown the farmers swarmed into the two coaches, and as soon as seated the talks began.

In his talk on alfalfa, Dr. Hunt said: "An acre of good alfalfa produces as much digestible nutrients as an acre of good clover, the digestible protein being three times as great. Failures have been due to inexperience for the most part, as the alfalfa would have been established in many cases, if the requirements of the plant had been understood. The climate here is not unfavorable and the plant will thrive in a number of various soils, provided the drainage be good. Sandy or gravelly loam, with a porous sub-soil is the best. Alfalfa requires plenty of lime and on sandy land, this should be applied at the rate of 1,000 to 2,000 pounds to the acre. When sweet clover is not a weed of the section soil, inoculation is advisable. Alfalfa can be sown any time during the growing season, but from this section from August 1 to 15 is recommended. A good plan is to break the ground in June, roll and disk thoroughly and then continue to roll and harrow each week, until time for seeding."

Abram G. Keagy of near Littlestown, became engaged in a talk with Dr. Hunt about alfalfa, heartily supporting its culture. "I have raised alfalfa for nearly ten years and find it one of the most profitable of crops. From a six-acre field, I take nineteen loads on a four-horse, twenty-foot ladder wagon, which amounts to about 25 tons and I would encourage anyone who thinks of starting the culture of alfalfa.

S. L. Johns of Hanover, presented the instructors with a specimen of hemp raised on his property in Adams county. Mr. Johns was the first man to introduce the raising of hemp for any profit in this section of the state. He also possesses the first machine sent out by the government for the purpose of breaking the hemp. His crop is, he says, the best in the country, producing 1575 pounds to the acre. For this he received about six and a half cents a pound. Most of the crop is used in Hanover by the Cordage Works. Mr. Johns said that the time to drill is from the 15th to the 20th of May, and the hemp should be cut in September.

The topics treated were alfalfa, corn, soil fertility increasing dairy products, and the wood lot, and on the latter subject, Hugh P. Baker, forester of School of Agriculture, described vividly the yearly decrease of the wood supply by fire, bugs and other pests and showed how, in consequence, the price of lumber was going steadily upward. He told how the vast quantities of cheap lumber, such as the dogwood, soft maple, blue beech and others, might be utilized for fence posts and made capable of withstanding the weather by the use of preservatives such as creosote. He also showed the financial returns from growing European larch, white pine, hardy catalpa, locust and others.

Death of General Palmer

General William J. Palmer died at his home at Colorado Springs last week. General Palmer was an exceptional man, public spirited and generous to a fault. In August 1907 General Palmer had as his guests the survivors of the 15th Pennsylvania Cavalry which he commanded during the war. At his own expense 200 survivors were taken from Pennsylvania and royally entertained. Among those who enjoyed his hospitality were: Jacob Kitzmiller of this place, John W. Wieman of Huntington township, W. Small of Edgegrove, John McLaughlin of Fairfield and F. N. Noel of Fairfield, all members of the 15th Pa. Cavalry. General Palmer lived an exceptionally useful life. He built a number of western railroads. In 1901 when he sold one of the roads he had helped to build and reaped a large profit, he divided a million dollars among the officers and employees who had helped him to build and run the road Colorado Springs was in great measure his enterprise, he gave the system a system of public grounds and drives. He gave Mantion Park, worth $100,000 for a forestry school to Colorado college. For years he had 250 men at his own expense constantly employed on public works. It is rare to find a successful man giving so much of his life and means, to the communities in which he won his success.

TRUTHFUL REPORTS.

Gettysburg Reads Them With Uncommon Interest.

A Gettysburg citizen tells his experience in the following statement. No better evidence than this can be had. The truthful reports of friends and neighbors is the best proof in the world. Read and be convinced.

Pentose Myers, 12 Baltimore St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "I have to be on my feet a great deal of the time and this served to weaken my kidneys. A constant pain across my back, caused me much misery and at times was so acute that I could hardly stoop. I also had trouble from rheumatism, at times being very lame and stiff, especially in the morning. I was feeling quite miserable when my attention was drawn to Doan's Kidney Pills and I procured a box at the Peoples Drug Store. They effected a complete cure and I am today without a sign of kidney trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

HOW TO PREPARE A MIXTURE TO CURE RHEUMATISM.

This Town Has Its Share of Dread Disease, which is Said to Yield to Simple Home Recipe.

To relieve the worst forms of Rheumatism, take a teaspoonful of the following mixture after each meal and at bedtime:

Laid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

These harmless ingredients can be obtained from our home druggists, and are easily mixed by shaking them well in a bottle. Relief is generally felt from the first few doses.

This prescription forces the clogged, inactive kidneys to filter and strain from the blood the poisonous waste matter and uric acid, which causes Rheumatism.

As Rheumatism is not only the most painful and torturous disease, but dangerous to life, this simple receipt will do to doubt be greatly valued by many sufferers here at home, who should at once prepare the mixture to get this relief.

It is said that a person who would take this prescription regularly, a dose or two daily, or even a few times a week, would never have serious Kidney or Urinary disorders or Rheumatism.

Cut this out and preserve it. Good Rheumatism prescriptions which really relieve are scarce, indeed, and when you need it, you need it badly.

TALKS ON ADVERTISING—NO. 5

How Alexander Untied the Knot.

By Herbert Kaufman.

Alexander the Great was being shown the Gordian Knot. "It can't be untied," they told him; "every man who tried to do it fell down."

But Alexander was not discouraged because the rest had flunked. He simply realized that he would have to go at it in a different way. And instead of wasting time with his fingers he drew his sword and slashed it apart.

Every day a great business general is shown some knot which has proven too much for his competitors, and he succeeds because he finds a way to cut it. The fumbler has no show so long as there is a brother merchant who doesn't waste time trying to accomplish the impossible—who takes lessons from the failures about him and avoids the methods which were their downfall.

- The knottiest problems in trade are:
- 1—The problem of location.
 - 2—The problem of getting the crowds.
 - 3—The problem of keeping the crowds.
 - 4—The problem of minimizing fixed expenses.
 - 5—The problem of creating a valuable good will.

None of these knots is going to be untied by fumbling fingers. They are too complicated. They're all involved together—twisted and entangled over and about each other—so intertwined that they can't be solved singly—like the Gordian Knot they must be cut through at one stroke. And you can't cut the knot with any sword except the newspaper—because:

- 1—A store that is constantly before the people makes its own neighborhood.
- 2—Crowds can be brought from anywhere by daily advertising.
- 3—Customers can always be held by inducements.
- 4—Fixed expenses can only be reduced by increasing the volume of sales.
- 5—Good will can only be created through publicity.

Advertising is breeding new giants every year and making them more powerful every hour. Publicity is the sustaining food of a powerful store and the only strengthening nourishment for a weak one. The retailer who delays his entry into advertising must pay the penalty of his procrastination by facing more giant competitors as every month of opportunity slips by.

Personal ability as a close purchaser and as a clever seller doesn't count for a hang so long as other men are equally well posted and wear the sword of publicity to boot. They are able to tie your business into constantly closer knots, while you cannot retaliate because there is no knot which their advertising cannot cut for them.

Yesterday you lost a customer—today they took one—tomorrow they'll get another. You cannot cope with their competition because you haven't the weapon with which to oppose it. You can't untie your Gordian Knot because it can't be untied—you've got to cut it.

You must become an advertiser or you must pay the penalty of incompetence.

You not only require the newspaper to fight for a more hopeful tomorrow, but to keep today's situation from becoming hopeless.

Odd Degeneracy.

Charles J. Cooper, a fireman of the Western Maryland railroad, making $91 a month, having a wife and two children and living in Baltimore, has developed one of the oddest cases of degeneracy. He was caught throwing vitriol on the clothing of a woman on Lexington St. In the past year there have been 34 complaints made to the police of Baltimore by women that vitriol had been thrown on their clothing and for a year they have been on the watch for the perpetrator. A peculiar motion of Cooper as he approached a woman standing in front of a shop window attracted the attention of a policeman and led to his arrest. Two syringes and a bottle of the acid was found upon him and he confessed. He admitted getting the acid from a tannery on his run a few miles east of Westminster. When questioned he denied that any class prejudice or revenge dictated his actions and that he was not jealous of the finery some women wore. His explanation for his act was "that he could not help it."

NASAL CATARRH, an inflammation of the delicate membrane lining the air-passages, is not cured by any mixtures taken into the stomach. Don't waste time on them. Take Ely's Cream Balm through the nostrils, so that the fevered, swollen tissues are reached at once. Never mind how long you have suffered now how often you have been disappointed, we know Ely's Cream Balm is the remedy you should use. All druggists, 50c. Mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.

Railway Merger

The formation of a new independent railroad system with a total mileage of more than 1,200 miles, extending from Baltimore to Pittsburg, and to include the Western Maryland, the Wheeling and Lake Erie and Wabash-Pittsburg terminal and the West Side Belt railroad of Pittsburg, is considered in well informed circles as practically assured, provided the supreme court of the United States sustains the right of the railroads to haul products of enterprises which they own or control, and objections of certain interests in the properties named are removed.

The foregoing is the outline of a plan to reorganize the Gould lines in the east now in the hands of the Receivers, and if it is carried out, as it is expected it will be, it will mean the consummation of the plan originally made by George J. Gould and his associates when they acquired control of the Western Maryland railroad, with the exception that the new system will not be operated as part of the Wabash which is also a Gould property.

Junk Dealers Warned.

Judge Kunkel, of Harrisburg, in sentencing several junk dealers convicted of buying junk from minors, warned all junk dealers that they should know that there are three classes which they have no right to buy from—persons unknown, persons without an occupation, and minors.

Beer Money and Churches.

In the eighteenth century there were no temperance societies or bands of hope, nor Reebabites and blue ribbon army. To be as "drunk as a lord" was the height of human felicity. It was the age of "three bottle men," of convivial toasts, of drinking songs. Even the church indirectly encouraged intemperance. There were certain districts where at Whitsuntide the churchwardens were accustomed to levy contributions of malt from the parishioners. This was brewed into strong ale and sold in the church. The Whitsuntide toppers had, however, a pious method in their madness.

The money spent on the beer was expended by the churchwardens in church maintenance, and the muddled roisterers no doubt believed themselves to be pillars of the church even when, under the influence of the alcohol, they rolled upon its pavement. They thought themselves supporters of the church when they wanted "supporting" themselves and deemed themselves most saintly when they were most soddened. Until as recently as 1827 (when the license was withdrawn) a church and public house were covered by one roof at Deepdale, midway between Derby and Nottingham. A door that could be opened at will served to separate the consecrated interior of the church from the common taproom of the tavern!—Chambers' Journal.

Good Bait.

"I got Cleveland's autograph," said the friend, "by addressing to him a little ode on his splendid work in the White House anent the Russo-Japanese war—or was it something else? At any rate, I shall never forget my delight when, by return mail, Mr. Cleveland wrote:

"Dear Sir—I have read your verses with interest. They appear to me very deficient in sense and substance."

"I sent a sonnet of sympathy to Bernard Shaw on the failure of his play 'His House in Order,' or some such title. Mr. Shaw replied on a post card as follows:

"Thank you very much for your sonnet, which seems at least sincere."

"I once ventured to address a sonnet to Ellen Terry. In it I praised her beauty passionately. Miss Terry sent me a long and interesting note of acknowledgment, in the course of which she said:

"I noticed many faults and weaknesses in your sonnet, which, however, made me laugh heartily."—Exchange.

DEAR OLD GARDEN HERBS

THYME — MARJORAM — ROSE-MARY — LAVENDAR — BASIL

Something of the Associations of the Old Time Herbs. Give Them a Place in the Garden of To-day.

In a mellow corner of my garden I have established a colony of sweet and bitter herbs. My practical neighbor across the fence, for whom I occasionally make up a bunch, prizes the leaves as a tasty addition to her sauces and stuffings, but my interest in the plants is mainly because of their warm fragrances and their stimulating influence upon the imagination. Who, for instance, can linger over a round bed of cushiony thyme in blossom, listen to the droning bees as its heart, breathe the aroma of the crushed leaves—and be utterly prosy? In spite of yourself, you are whisked back to the days of your childhood and are fellowshiping with fairies again.

There are several varieties of thyme, but the usual garden sort is "standing" thyme, whose erect stems well distinguish it from the wild thyme, immortalized by Shakespeare. This latter variety has creeping branches that lol lazily upon the ground. It was the belief of rustics of an earlier age that wild thyme tufts were favorite haunts of joyous elves, and, perhaps, it was for that reason that thyme has been recommended as a cure for the "blues."

Next my bed of thyme grows sweet marjoram, which, like its neighbor, is an herb of cheerfulness, for the brides of ancient Greece and Rome were crowned with fragrant chaplets of it. My practical neighbor tells me that in the rural neighborhood from which she came, every good housewife keeps a stock of this herb for the making of a tea "to bring out the rash," in diseases where such a consummation is desired, as measles, for instance. A more frequent use of sweet marjoram—which oddly enough is more bitter than sweet—is as a seasoning for steves and soups, or like parsley, as a garnishing. The tiny white flowers lodge in the crevices of overlapping bracts, which are compactly clustered and resemble small green ones. Sweet marjoram has a cousin, the pot or wild marjoram, which once was customarily cultivated in well-ordered kitchen gardens, but it is less thought of now. So neglected, it has taken to vagrancy and not infrequently is met with running riot by the wayside.

Rosemary is so pleasant a name that mainly for the love of the sweet sound of it, I made room for a clump or two in my herb corner. It speaks to me of Sunny France, to whose Southern coasts it is native, frequently adorning with its small light blue flowers the chalky hills and old walls within reach of the ocean spray. Its pretty name, indeed, is but an English form of a Latin word that means sea dew, and the saltish fragrance of the foliage has been likened by some to the odor of the sea. Like the sea, too, the plant has from time immemorial been credited with wonderful tonic powers, even the ability to make the old young. An ancient chronicler has left on record the case of a certain gouty old queen, who ground six pounds of rosemary in a mortar and using the powder in her bath thrice a day, grew so young and active that she soon began to look around for a husband!

Special herb of daintiness is the lavender, whose value for scenting linens made it in old times a useful adjunct to every gentlewoman's housekeeping—the flowers possessing the rare property of retaining their fragrance for a long time after dying. The living blossoms are a special charm of the fragrant plant, their peculiar blue being so characteristic a shade that the name of the flower has been given to the color also. An ancient herb is lavender, native to the Levant and the warm shores of the Mediterranean, and its immemorial use in perfuming the bath no doubt made it the familiar of every old Greek and Roman of the history books. Large areas in Spain, Italy, the South of France and Southern England, are nowadays given over to its cultivation, for the distilled water of lavender is a most delicate perfume, but the American fancy has not as yet been captured by the plant to any popular extent. In California, where conditions are more favorable to its growth than on the Atlantic seaboard, it is often grown as an ornamental border. "Hot" lavender was among Paridita's flowers in "A Winter's Tale."

My plants of sweet basil always create a flutter of interest in literary visitors, who know this herb through the gruesome associations of the poem, "A Pot of Basil." The ancient world had a belief that there was a property in Basil that bred scorpions and the smell of it would create them in man's brains—whence doubtless the poet's dark fancy. The leaves have the pleasantest of minty perfumes, which scents the air perceptibly if I but brush my hand across the plant.

Rue, "sour herb of grace," as Shakespeare calls it, was a kitchen herb among the ancient Hebrews, and is mentioned in the New Testament as subject to the tithing exacted of all produce of the soil. It has, however, a smell that is disagreeable to many people, and if one cultivates it in the garden nowadays it is usually for other reasons than to use in cookery. In ancient and in mediaeval times it had a great reputation for virtue in magic rites, and there was no orthodox witch without good store of it. Then, by way of turning the devil's own weapons against himself, Christian missionaries adopted the practice of making brushes of rue branches, wherewith to sprinkle holy water,

Does the Baby Thrive

SCOTT'S EMULSION

Half a teaspoonful three or four times a day in its bottle will have the desired effect. It seems to have a magical effect upon babies and children. A fifty-cent bottle will prove the truth of our statements.

whence the Shakespearean term, "herb of grave" applied to the plant. By reason of its history rue makes an interesting addition to the herb corner, while its bluish foliage divided into roundish leaflets is always attractive. The flowers of four divergent greenish yellow petals, shaped like elongated cups, appeal to lovers of the curious. Where the drip of the hydrant keeps the ground always moist, I have established two small colonies of mint—one of peppermint and one of spearmint. With each returning year the cheerful assemblies of this fragrant herb crowd themselves across their allotted borders, and I am obliged to root it up ruthlessly to keep the bed within bounds. "A wholesome herb that breathes a grateful scent," one of the old poets sings of mint, and surely none of the aromatic tribe of garden herbs appeals more to Americans. Every caller, I notice, however languid his interest in other things of the garden, wakes up at the mint bed, and snaps off a spray to nibble as he walks.

Whitla Kidnapping and Others.

The country has been stirred up from one end to the other over the kidnapping of little "Billie" Whitla of Sharon, Pa., and his return to his father upon payment of a $10,000 ransom.

At the most intense moment of the crime the House and Senate of Pennsylvania offered by resolution a $15,000 reward for the capture and conviction of the abductors and the Governor issued the following proclamation:

"By virtue of the authority contained in a concurrent resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, approved the 23d day of March, A. D. 1909, and in pursuance thereof, I, Edwin S. Stuart, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do hereby offer a reward of fifteen thousand dollars for the apprehension and conviction of the party or parties who abducted William Whitla, of the County of Mercer, State of Pennsylvania."

The day after the return of Billie Whitla, a woman and two men were arrested in Cleveland and over $9,000 was found on the woman. The abductors have been recognized by the child and will be brought to Mercer Co., Pa. to answer for their crime. To two Cleveland detectives would belong the State reward.

Sentiment over kidnapping has been running so high that a bill was introduced into the Legislature of Pa. to punish abduction with the death penalty, but it is not likely that the bill will become law, though it is probable imprisonment for the offense will be made much severer than at present.

The following is a list of the notorious kidnappings in this country since that of Charley Ross:

- 1874—Charles Ross, Germantown, Pa.: July 1, 1874; child and kidnappers were never discovered.
- 1882—Walter Saunders, Atchison, Kan.: Kidnapped by gang of men and never heard of.
- 1882—W. W. Dickinson, Jr., Wisconsin: Never seen again.
- 1883—Miss Zerelde Garrison, St. Louis: After a few weeks kidnappers were caught.
- 1883—Charles Canoon, Troy, N. Y.: Kidnaped by Mary Gilbridge for begging purposes. She was caught after a few days.
- 1883—Johnnie Navin, Boston: Disappeared April 13 and never reappeared.
- 1893—Mamie Toomer, Georgia: Kidnaped by Duubar Walton and Louis E. Frank from an orphan asylum, but caught soon after.
- 1894—Sophia Hasenon, Philadelphia: Never recovered.
- 1896—Sadie and Martin Jamison, Newark: Kidnaped while on way to school; never found.
- 1899—Baby of A. Levine, Sharon, Pa.: Stolen from baby carriage; year later discovered.
- 1900—Louis Tonhose, Jud, Iowa: Not been heard of since.
- 1903—Edward Cudahy: Kidnaped and returned when ransom was paid.
- 1909—"Billie" Whitla, Sharon, Pa.: Kidnaped and returned.

Foster's Predictions for April.

W. T. Foster, the weather forecaster of Washington, D. C., predicts as follows:

I positively assert that there are weather cycles, that I have discovered enough of these cycles to enable me to make valuable long range forecasts of crop weather, and therefore I beg you, as a test, to publish my calculations for April, 1909, which I give below, and let your readers determine whether my claim is well founded:

I expect first week of April to be unusually cold in the States east of the Alleghennies and north of the Potomac with more than the usual amount of rain. During that week temperatures will go to the freezing point and killing frosts will occur.

During the week of which April 14th will be central day temperatures will go unusually high, thunder storms will occur and from April 10th to 20th the weather will be a real weather bureau "flareback," an outrage on the reputation of weather that is inclined to be moderate.

From April 15th to 20th, while a tropical storm will be off our southeastern coasts and a severe cold wave in the great central valleys west of the Alleghennies the storms in the northeastern States will assume a threatening condition and almost anything in the weather line is liable to occur.

The most severe storms will occur not far from April 4th, 13th, and 19th, and the month will go out cold. Warmest days will be near 14th and 24th.

HUNTING DEER IN RED.

BUCHANAN VALLEY, Mar. 29.—There is a bill pending in the Legislature at Harrisburg introduced by Hon. Jas. C. Cole, to enforce the wearing of red caps and coats by all hunters of deer and bear in Pennsylvania. This will be a very good law to protect the hunters' lives from reckless hunters, or those hunters who are too eager to shoot at a moving object. On our mountains and especially in the haunts of the deer, the underbrush is very thick, and in the open season for deer the leaves on the underbrush being so near the color of the suits now generally worn while hunting, which also resembles the color of the deer. It is hard to distinguish the object at a distance. A bright red could be observed at a glance, and that would put the man that is hunting on his guard. Often there is a hunter in range of a deer, if he wore a distinguishing suit there would be less danger of accidental shooting. A hunter always stands in danger of his life hunting on the mountains, and especially since the long range rifles are in use.

It is hoped this act of the Legislature will meet the approval and good will of every deer hunter who hunts in the State of Pennsylvania.

By an old hunter who has hunted deer for forty years on the South Mountain.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT TO CHILD.

EAST BERLIN, Mar. 29.—A serious accident happened on the farm of Potter Samuel Miller in Reading township, tenanted by Samuel Root on last Saturday. Mr. Root was hauling out manure. A little daughter of Mr. Root, 7 years old, was sitting on the empty wagon on return trip from the field and in crossing the road to go in the yard, the wagon was jolted so that the child fell from the wagon and the hind wheel passed over her head. Dr. G. E. Spatz was summoned at once and at first had little hope for recovery from the accident but later the condition of the child changed for the better so that hopes are now entertained.

THE SOUTH POLE.

Expedition Reaches Point Within 111 Miles of Pole.

Lieutenant E. H. Shackleton, of the British navy, commander on the Antarctic expedition which returned on the barkentine Nimrod to Invercargill, New Zealand, recently, did not quite achieve his object, but succeeded in getting within 111 miles of the South Pole.

The Nimrod expedition left England in July, 1907, and after reaching the ice field and making the most elaborate preparations, the main expedition started on a sledge journey which occupied 126 days and traversed 1708 miles southward. The explorers reached latitude 88° 23' and longitude 162° east, which was estimated as 111 miles from the Pole.

At the point where the expedition was compelled to turn back the land was 3000 feet in altitude, trending southward in a vast field of snow, no mountains being in sight.

Lieutenant Shackleton thus describes the dash to the pole:

"The Southern party, composed of Adams, Marshall, Wild and myself, with four ponies, and a supporting party consisting of Brocklehurst, Joyce, Marson, Armytage and Priestley, left Cape Royd Oct. 29, 1908. On November 3, we left Hut Point with 91 days provisions, but were held up on White Island, which we reached on Nov. 5, for four days by a blizzard. The supporting party returned to the permanent quarters on Nov. 7. Owing to the bad light among the ice crevasses, Adams and his pony were nearly lost.

"A few days later we reached the depot at latitude 79° 25', longitude 168° east, where we appropriated the maize and other provisions left there. We commenced to reduce our daily rations, and traveling south along meridian 168 over a varying surface of ridges and mountains of snow, alternating with soft snow in which the ponies often sank to their bellies.

"In latitude 81.64 we shot a pony and made a depot of oil, biscuit and pony meat, taking the remainder of the pony meat to eke out our dried rations. We reached the 'discovery' southernmost latitude on November 26. The surface now became soft, with large undulations. The ponies were attacked by snow-blindness, and the second of them was shot, a depot being made in latitude 82.45, longitude 170. On November 30 we killed our third pony.

"Steering South and Southwest, we were now approaching a high range of new mountains, trending to the Southeast. On December 2 we discovered a glacier 120 miles long and approximately 40 miles wide, running in a south and southwesterly direction, and on December 5 we started to ascend it at latitude 83.33, longitude 172. The glacier was full of bad crevasses as the result of tremendous pressure. It took the whole of the next day for us to fight our way 600 yards. There were many dangers to be faced, for at any moment one might be thrown into some unknown depth. As it was, on December 7, the last remaining pony broke through a snow lid and disappeared in a crevice. Fortunately the single tree snapped and we saved Wild and the sledge, which was damaged."

Shackleton took with him 12 Siberian ponies and 24 dogs. Several scientists, with all necessary instruments were with the expedition. The plan was to establish winter quarters on King Edward VII Land for twelve persons, and make the attempt to reach the Pole in the summer of 1908.

The previous records for farthest south were Borchgrevink's, 78 deg., 50 min., made in 1900; Sir James Ross, 78 deg., 10 min., made in 1843; and Captain James Cook's, 71 deg., 10 min., made on his voyage of 1773-1774. The Antarctic regions are almost without fauna or flora, uninhabited, and have not been as thoroughly explored as the regions about the North Pole. Practically only the shore line of what may be a great continent is known.

The farthest point south heretofore reached was 70 degrees, 50 minutes, where U. E. Borchgrevink, a Norwegian explorer, arrived on March 17, 1900.

The scientific results of the Nimrod expedition ought to be of unusual interest and value. No expense was spared in engaging specialists and assembling the equipment. A geologist, a zoologist and a marine biologist were in the party, and the intelligence obtained about the waters of the great bay that makes a breach in Victoria Land and the interior of the so-called Antarctic continent, its flora, any animal life that may exist there, and particularly the topography and the geological structure of the region, should add materially to the stock of information.

Cattle Disease Stamped Out.

Last Friday the federal quarantine for the foot and mouth disease was entirely lifted from the state of New York and Pennsylvania with the exception of the borough of Glenolden, in Delaware county, and certain townships in Lancaster county, as the result of an order issued by Secretary of Agriculture Wilson. The disease is not now known to exist among livestock in either New York or Pennsylvania. The effect of the order is to permit the interstate movement of cattle from every part of New York and from Pennsylvania, excepting in the two counties referred to. Pennsylvania now is the only state which is even partially in quarantine.

Near Death In Big Pond.

It was a thrilling experience to Mrs. Ida Soper to face death. "For years a severe lung trouble gave me intense suffering," she writes, "and several times nearly caused my death. All remedies failed, and doctors said I was incurable. Then Dr. King's New Discovery brought quick relief, and a cure so permanent that I have not been troubled in twelve years." Mrs. Soper lives in Big Pond, Pa. It works wonders in Coughs and Colds, Sore Lungs, Hemorrhages, LaGrippe, Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough and all Bronchial affections. 50c and $1.00. Converting Gwendolyn.

By MARTHA COBB SANFORD.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

At twenty Gwendolyn Rand was undoubtedly a personality to be reckoned with.

"I don't see where you get snappy," Gwendolyn complained.

"Why, at your age!"

"Yes, indeed," corroborated Mr. Rand, "at your age, Gwendolyn, you must have settled down."

"But, my dear," Gwendolyn said, "I'm not settling down after all the years I've spent in the neighborhood."

"Oh, daddy," remonstrated Gwendolyn, "I think you might be a little more militant."

"Well, well, the young men weren't all running after her, then," amended Mr. Rand, softening at the hurt look in Gwendolyn's big brown eyes.

"But it doesn't look well either way, I can't understand where!"

"Mother was brought up in a convent, you remember. I'm the product of coeducation," ventured Gwendolyn in explanation.

"If that," reflected Mr. Rand, "then may be the reason, but the remedy is your Aunt Abiatha."

Gwendolyn gave a little gasp of apprehension.

"Yes, my dear," continued Mr. Rand, "your mother and I have decided to send you down to Florida to spend the winter with your Aunt Abiatha."

"She will teach you the things a girl of your age ought to know, daughter," added Gwendolyn's mother, fully, "things which I have somehow failed to make you take an interest in."

"In other words, I'm to be sent to a convent," exclaimed Gwendolyn as she swished out of the room, her head high in air, but her eyes glistening with unshed tears.

Aunt Abiatha's spacious, old-fashioned house merited kinder verdict than Gwendolyn bestowed upon it at first glance. Once up in her cozy bedroom, however, with its chintz covered four poster and French windows opening out on to a little rose covered porch, the girl's heart melted in spite of herself, and she threw both arms around Aunt Abiatha, completely submissive for the time being.

But after the novelty of dusting, sewing and cooking began to resolve itself into routine Gwendolyn suddenly balked.

"Now I know how to do all these prosaic things, Aunt Abiatha," she argued, "what's the use of doing them day after day? There are so many real live things to do in the world. Let's give a garden party or something, Aunt Abiatha. Are there any male inhabitants in Centerville that we could hire to come, do you think?"

"Gwendolyn, my dear, how you talk! Of course there are," Aunt Abiatha was startled into admitting. "There's young Jack Hayward for one."

"What's he like?"

"Very thoughtful and polite," replied Aunt Abiatha loyally. "He comes of one of our best families."

"Poor thing!" muttered Gwendolyn. "What did you say, dear?"

"I asked what he does for a living?" prevaricated Gwendolyn unblushingly.

"Why, he manages his father's estate, of course. He's a country gentleman."

"Oh," commented Gwendolyn indifferently, "he must be a very provincial kind of person! I don't think I should like him."

"Well, of all things, Gwendolyn, bristled Aunt Abiatha. "Of course you'd like him. Every one does. I'll ask him to call."

An afternoon or two later as Gwendolyn was reclining in the hammock on her little porch engrossed in a novel she became suddenly conscious that the front doorbell had been ringing for some time. On the veranda below she could hear Aunt Abiatha rocking to and fro.

"The front doorbell's ringing, Aunt Abiatha," she called, jumping up. "It's that polite and thoughtful young country gentleman, please don't disturb me. I'm in the midst of an awfully exciting love story."

A hearty masculine laugh followed Gwendolyn's declaration.

It aroused her curiosity, but also indignation, and she re-established herself in the hammock, determined not to display the slightest interest, whatever happened.

But the next thing she heard startled her into a sitting posture.

"Now, Aunt Abiatha, will you introduce us?"

Gwendolyn, walking to the rail of the porch, could hardly believe her eyes. "There, on the roof of the veranda, not ten feet away from her, stood an extremely good looking young man, and there, on the lawn, stood Aunt Abiatha, the picture of dignified disapproval.

"Gwendolyn," she called up, "this is Mr. Heyward. Jack, my niece, Mr. Rand. I never saw such good looking young men. Go right into your room, Gwendolyn."

Gwendolyn did not budge. She laughed and laughed, until Aunt Abiatha finally joined in.

But such a triangular situation was not over encouraging, especially since Aunt Abiatha refused to leave her single of observation, so eventually the all adjourned to the downstairs veranda for afternoon tea.

"So you're a climber, Mr. Heyward?" Gwendolyn observed archly, taking advantage of Aunt Abiatha's absence in the kitchen.

"Given sufficient incentive—yes," Jack answered lightly. "I couldn't stand down there below, you know, and let a fellow in a book get ahead of me."

"Get ahead of you?"

"Well, absorb your interest to the exclusion of a real human being," explained Jack.

"You took an awful risk," laughed Gwendolyn.

"Oh, that was nothing," Jack boasted. "I'm used to all sorts of athletic stunts, you know."

"That isn't the kind of risk I meant exactly," Gwendolyn enlightened him.

"Well, how did you like him?" demanded Aunt Abiatha after the caller's departure.

"Not very well," said Gwendolyn, shaking her head dubiously. "He's bold and conceited."

"But, my dear," Gwendolyn interposed, "you haven't judged him from first appearances. Jack is a little queer today. I don't know if it was the matter with him. But we have him in often, and you must be polite to him, Gwendolyn."

And that was how a most audacious courtship came to be carried on right under Aunt Abiatha's eyes.

And that was how a most audacious courtship came to be carried on right under Aunt Abiatha's eyes.

"Gwendolyn," asked Jack dreamily one sunny morning as they sat together in the fragrant rose garden, "how did you ever happen to come down to this quiet little spot anyhow? I should imagine you'd love all the gay things of life—dances, theaters, dinners and all that, you know. Don't you?"

"No, you're all wrong," answered Gwendolyn slowly, hiding her face in the flowers she had gathered. "I love something quite different."

For a few minutes the birds in the garden had it all to themselves, so suddenly still were the two people who sat there.

"Gwendolyn," Jack finally found himself asking in a husky voice quite unlike his own, "do you really love it down here—the quiet, lazy life we lead?"

Gwendolyn nodded, but did not lift her face.

"Love it enough to stay with me, dearest?"

Gwendolyn nodded again.

"Look up at me, you fraud," Jack commanded, taking her joyfully into his arms.

"I can't," Gwendolyn protested, blinking. "There's something in my eye."

"Oh, let me get it out, sweetheart," implored Jack sympathetically. "What is it, darling?"

"A tear, I think," confessed the mischievous Gwendolyn.

Half an hour later Jack sat talking with Aunt Abiatha on the porch. Gwendolyn was scribbling her daily line to her mother.

"Read that, Aunt Abiatha," the girl called suddenly, holding out a sheet of note paper. "It has something about you in it."

And this is what the astonished Aunt Abiatha read:

Dearest Mother and Dad—I want you to come down here just as quickly as you can. I am to be married at Aunt Abiatha's two weeks from today. The wedding will be very quiet. Aunt Abiatha fully approves of my engagement—in fact she has done everything in her power to bring it about. Please bring my trousseau along with you. Your loving

He Liked the Sound.

Mr. Goff has a humor peculiarly his own. He looks at the world in a half amused, half indignant manner sometimes very annoying to his friends.

One day when in town he dropped into a restaurant for lunch. It was a tidy although not a pretentious establishment. After a good meal he called to the waitress and inquired what kind of pie could be had.

"Apple pie, mince pie, blueberry pie, strawberry pie, cherry pie, and a whole lot more," she said.

"Will you please say that again?" he asked, leaning a trifle forward.

The girl went through the list at lightning rate. "And strawberry pie," she concluded, with emphasis.

"Would you mind doing it once more?" he said.

The waitress looked her disgust and started in a third time, pronouncing the word in a definitely clear tone.

"Thank you," he remarked when she had finished. "For the life of me I can't see how you do it. But I like to hear it. It's very interesting, very give me apple pie, please, and thank you very much." Youth's Companion

A Noiseless City in Frissland.

Frissy is a city of 25,000 inhabitants, guileless of street cars and omnibuses, (the street cars here from Francher built discreetly without the noisy easily comprehended in an hour, for its single, it's old model which it has not yet entirely overstepped, is not five miles in extent; a city without smoke, or confusion, save on a number of days, and clean, quiet, spacious, and by a few houses with stables and a people of very cheerful, simple women, dressed with good and homely, and demurely dressed, grave and dignified. Send red sealed letters to its very heart, until masts are jumbled with electric light poles and church towers; densely foliated trees beside its quays, and a few from railed flower beds in its open squares; give it a water slide threaded with hundreds of boats crossed by a few bridges and many little hand ferries—and you will see Leenwarden.—Scribner's Magazine.

He Knew Them.

"Things have gone completely to the dogs with me."

"Cheer up. They might have been worse."

"Don't you believe it."

"Why?"

"Because then they would have been."

Parceling Out of People.

Fishing, two boys strung their big catch on the same string. Passing a graveyard they entered the gate to divide the catch, dropping two fish just as they went inside the cemetery. Passing on, and negro heard the two boys, "I'll take this one, you take that one; I this one, you that one; I this one, you that one," etc.

The negro listened in dismay, and ran away as rapidly as he could. The minister, who called:

"Deacon, why you run so fast?"

Penguin Battles.

The penguin, a notable diver among sea birds, while his mate is right of conquest. The male birds fight for the possession of the females. These curious birds have regular duel grounds, where rolls of immemorial combats in the shape of feathers lie scattered about. In the center is the fighting arena, clear of all debris. The penguins' feathers and blubber form an efficient shield against their opponents' beaks, so the weapon used is the short flipper, the only wings the birds possess. The fight begins with the two combatants walking round each other waiting for an opportunity to grip. Once this is done the flippers come into play. The fighters shower blow after blow upon each other. There is no record as to how these fights end, but it is a safe supposition to say that they are seldom fatal. The force of the blow from a penguin's flipper is such that three or four of them will draw blood from the human hand.

How Models Make Pictures.

The artist gazed in rapture on "The Kiss," his latest picture.

"Do you grasp," he said, "the passionate grace of the girl's attitude, the warmth and the power wherewith her tense white arms draw the young man closer, ever closer? Well, I got that idea from my model, a shopgirl."

"But for my model's suggestion I'd have put the girl in a stiff, cold pose, and the picture would never have been the masterpiece it is. But my model pointed out to me the abandon wherewith a girl, whether of high or low station, gives herself up to a kiss' charm. She illustrated the thing, aided by a male model, a young medical student. Yes, she made my picture."

"The fact is, models make, with their valuable hints and suggestions, lots of pictures. There's many a masterpiece whose merit is due to the splendid pose that the model originated for the principal figure."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Burma's Popular Sports.

A form of speculation very popular in Burma is bull racing. A certain native sportsman is the owner of one of these bulls, for which he has refused an offer of 10,000 rupees. It has won several races and is looked after and as carefully tended as a Derby favorite. The owner values it at 25,000 rupees, and it is said, it brings him an annual income of from 12,000 to 15,000 rupees. It is carefully guarded by four men lest it may be got at and "doctored."

Burmans also patronize boxing eagerly, but the art can scarcely be practiced according to Queensberry rules, for we are told by a provincial reporter that he has observed that "even the best boxers strike out with their eyes tightly shut, and if they do hit each other it is more by chance than anything else."—Calcutta Statesman.

The Wrong Lady.

Some young lads had been enjoying the fun of hailing passing shopgirls with rather doubtful compliments, and from some of the answers returned it was evident that not all of those addressed were taking things kindly. Presently one of the older boys, seeing it was going too far, spoke up. "Look at 'here now, fellows," he called, "you might think you're wise guys, but all that, but just keep on at the wrong lady'll come along, and she'll break yer face, see?"—Argonaut.

SIMPLE WASH CURES ECZEMA.
Why Salves Fail While a Simple Liquid Has Accomplished Thousands of Cures.
 It is now thoroughly established among the best medical authorities that eczema is purely a skin disease, due to a germ, and curable only through the skin. It is not a blood disease at all; in fact, thousands of people suffer with skin disease and are perfectly healthy otherwise, and thereby prove they have no diseased blood.
 Smeary salves cannot reach the germ because they do not penetrate the skin. The only way to reach the germ is by means of a penetrating liquid.
 Such a liquid can be obtained by simply mixing ordinary oil of wintergreen with thymol, glycerine and other healing agents. This compound known as D. D. D. Prescription, stops the itch instantly—and the cures all appear to be permanent. In fact, it took thousands of cures, case after case, before the best scientific authorities were convinced of the absolute merit of this remedy. D. D. D. Prescription kills the germs in the itching skin. Its effects is seen within one minute after the first application. We especially recommend D. D. D. Soap in connection with the treatment.
